Background
University-sponsored athletic camps have either been run independently, through Conference and Event Services, or through Outreach. As independents, coaches were responsible for the insurance, marketing, promotions, mailings, registrations, and the renting of University facilities, and could make personal profits from the camp. Through Conference and Event Services and Outreach, the insurance and above services were provided by the University. In the 1996-97 academic year, camps and clinics became the responsibility of the Athletic Department, under the supervision of the Director of Athletics or designee. The Athletic Department will administer all aspects of athletic camps and clinics operated by university athletic personnel.
