Department: Communication Science and Disorders

Program Name: Communication Science and Disorders

Program Level: Undergraduate

College: College of Education and Professional Studies

Program: Major

Submitted by: Sharyl Samargia

Title: Professor, Department Chair and Graduate Program Director

Contact: sharyl.samargia@uwrf.edu

Submission Date: October 28, 2016

Program Outcomes

Outcome 1: Describe the biological and neurological bases of normal human communication.

Outcome 2: Describe and apply basic speech and hearing science information and concepts.

Outcome 3: Describe the processes of speech development

Outcome 4: Describe the processes of language development

Outcome 5: Describe the processes of hearing development

Outcome 6: Describe etiologies, prevention, assessment and intervention strategies for articulation/phonological disorders.

Outcome 7: Describe etiologies, prevention, assessment and intervention strategies for hearing disorders.

Outcome 8: Describe etiologies, prevention, assessment and intervention strategies for voice disorders.

Outcome 9: Describe etiologies, prevention, assessment and intervention strategies for fluency disorders.

Outcome 10: Describe etiologies, prevention, assessment and intervention strategies for language disorders.
Outcome 11: Integrate knowledge of normal human communication processes and disorders when assisting with, and conducting intervention sessions in the University Speech-Language-Hearing Clinic.