Falcon Scholars

$2000 available to you in your Junior or Senior year for Undergraduate Research (or Study Abroad). If you elect the research track, your funds can be used to pay for research expenses (supplies, disposable equipment, travel to conduct your research), and for a stipend to help support you while you pursue your project.

To use your funds for Undergraduate Research, you will learn four steps:

1. Develop an Idea—what would you like to research?
2. Find a Mentor—with whom would you like to work? Usually a member of the UWRF faculty or staff, or perhaps a member of the community.
3. Create a Research Plan—how will pursue your project?
   Where will you work on your project?
   What equipment or supplies will you need?
4. Develop a Timeline and a Budget—How much time do you think this project will require? What equipment or supplies will you need? Where can you rent, borrow, or buy the needed materials?
   How much money do you need for supplies and expenses?

Wondering how to begin? When to begin? Come see us—it’s never too early! Make an appointment, and/or attend one or all of the upcoming URSCA Mini-Forums.
